

Genealogy
of the
QUAINTANCE FAMILY
IN VIRGINIA AND KENTUCKY
1719 to 1968

These are the descendents of V-3 William, the second son of William and Tamson (Buffington) Quaintance, compiled from various sources and edited by Alfred M. Quaintance, Englewood, Colorado. 1968.

INTRODUCTION

This is the Virginia Line.

Within these pages is portrayed a people rich in tradition, in culture, in an heritage that lives today as it lived in colonial Virginia, the frontier of Kentucky, the years of a sad Civil War, through those other years of a country growing and pushing down roots toward a maturity that, today, finds the family scattered over a broad, and green, swath of our southern states, taking their name, their talents, their quiet contributions to a new settlement, a new state, or enriching an already old community.

As I searched for, gathered in, and edited information from correspondents and libraries, I could not escape the feeling that these people were wonderful people we all would have enjoyed knowing, being warm, generous and hospitable, the epitome of a gentle kindness toward a presumptuous world - not unlike my own letters of inquiry and the generous letters of information in return.

PREFACE

No great reason is needed to make a recording of some sort of one's family. It is neither presumptuous nor ill-suited for an occupation of time. Rather, it is time well spent and a certain amount of justifiable pride is enjoyed in seeing the project move ahead toward an inclusion of as much as possible available information, bringing together the facts of a family, the relationships, the chronology, and all in an orderly recording for easy reading.

The name is not famous in the sense that names become famous. The name is familiar, but only in the locality of immediate residence. More often than not it is a name misspelled or mispronounced, and sometimes mislaid. While we sometimes fret because the name is misspelled or mispronounced, we gain a certain obscurity, a certain security when it is mislaid among the great common denominator - people! We are people; let it go at that.

Part and parcel to a family is the folklore of a family. That William, the first recorded William in America, "jumped his ship", possibly leaving a duty station, is such folklore. We have insufficient proof to sit in judgment of his action. There is, also, a vague notation of a Thomas Quaintance who came to America in 1720 on the ship Bolton, out of Liverpool, England. These recited notations are without authority, an available reference, or a shade of proof that makes for authenticity and accurate reason for inclusion here. Let it be.

What is the origin of the name? Family folklore again carries the story. It is reported in Barber's British Family Names as being Flemish. In other source material, but without any authority to bear out the validity of it, is the opinion that the name is French, Huguenots who fled from France to England for religious freedom. Another interesting source is told in a letter to me from George W. Quaintance, a contemporary living in England today, that the name is Latin, Roman Empire Latin, as sons were named, "Primus, Secundus, - and Quintus for the fifth son. The Dorset and Somerset people with their soft, slurred speech called Quintus - Quaintus, and eventually Quaintance." At this writing the original source of the name is lost in antiquity.

It was in 1463 that King Edward V made a surname obligatory for all of his subjects. "They shall take unto themselves a surname either of some town or some color as Black or Brown or some art or science as Smyth or Carpenter, or some office, as Cook or Butler."

The above quotation is a journalistic reference without authorship or reference to authority. One historical reference lists the reign of Edward IV, the Father of Edward V, as being 1461 - 1483; the American Peoples Encyclopedia, Volume 7, 1951, lists the life of young Edward V as thirteen years, 1470 - 1483. So, as historians (possibly) argue, become vague in their references, and confuse the issue, let the above quote ride as more folklore that cloaks history in side issues of fiction. It doesn't matter much.

So, too, is the claim of some that there exists a coat of arms (and can produce the same!) for the Quaintance family. From available sources, the family was, "of the yeoman class." Funk and Wagnall's, New College Standard Dictionary; 1947, defines yeoman: "1. /Br/ A freeholder next under the rank of gentleman; in early times, one who owned a small landed estate; hence, in modern usage, a farmer, especially one who cultivates his own farm; loosely, a man of the common people."

Sloan Wilson, a present day author and frequently reprinted in Readers Digest, wrote: "Let me tell you the derivation of the word 'snob'. In the old days in England, a man's rank was always put after his name. If he had no rank, the Latin words sine nobilitate were written. These were shortened to snob, and it means quite clearly without nobility."

I have no comment to add to the above remarks except to remind the family that our greater strength in this democratic republic of ours is in our own strength of today and there is no justification to claim a nobility where none existed. Rather, let us stand in our own light than in the shadow of heraldic bearings.

The Bible quotes lengthy genealogies for us. The tribes of the South Seas know their ancestors as do the Chinese. Great libraries have been created for the purposes of research, and the wealth of published material is voluminous, cross-referenced, and indexed to create a reliable text. This reference material has been carefully researched for the following pages and reference made when applicable. Much of the material in the following pages is from original resources available to the family ranging from the family Bible to that data collected from head stones, newspaper stories, biographies, obituaries, and back to personal knowledge and recollection.

So, we begin by listing William as number one in America, recorded father of (2) George, (V-3) William, (M-4) James, (O-5) Joseph, (6) John. To further facilitate identification, each of the sons of William and Tamson (Buffington) Quaintance are given a geographical identity. (6) John remains to be proved out, but at this writing there seems a strong possibility of his being the father of the New York line with descendents coming out of Coatesville, Pennsylvania, where some are still living and some, so goes the supposition, migrated into Massachusetts, then back again to New York. (V-3) William is easily identified with his two sons, John and William, as having created the Virginia and Kentucky lines and is so identified by the prefix "V" before the numeral designation. (M-4) James migrated west through Ohio, to Illinois, to Minnesota where the family is now easily identified as the Minnesota line and carries that prefix of "M" for ready reading. (O-5) Joseph migrated with his family from Pennsylvania to Ohio and has become identified with the "O" for Ohio. In the absence of any record or reference (2) George must be considered as having remained single, leaving no issue.

A sincere fondness and respect for Frances B. Ryan (V-71) and for Elizabeth De Bell Quaintance (V-122) is enjoyed by me for their patience and generous sharing of their time and knowledge. It has been a delightful and rewarding correspondence.

Fisher E. Quaintance, of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, and of our mutual (O-5) Joseph line, has proved to be a generous kinsman who encouraged me along in my editorial position with a great wealth of information and data collected by him long before my late start on the project. The family genealogy is a work of love that came down from his father who was an avid collector of family fact and lore.

Fisher introduced me, via material sent, to Mrs. Julia Wood, of Woodville, Virginia (V-147), and to Mrs. Joseph B. Hudson, of Culpeper, Virginia (V-138). These generous people have given me much time, effort, and records for all of us. In corresponding with them I feel a warmth in the word cousin.

From the small, quiet Illinois town of Sherrard has come encouragement, data, and much information from Elsie Quaintance (of the Ohio line) who has continued the record keeping in the family commenced by her aunt, Adaline May Quaintance. It is a pleasure to call her cousin, too.

Mary Wynne Quaintance (V-149), of Arlington, Virginia, has personalized her correspondence to me with an interest and encouragement that has kept fanning my responsibilities toward greater efforts of accomplishment. And from the parsonage in Oskaloosa, Iowa, Iva Quaintance Street, the wife of the Reverend Mr. Guilford Street, Friends, has made important contributions plus adding a genuine interest by creating a record, having researched and printed a sixteen page folio of the Ohio line. She, too, is a warm personality that I have learned to enjoy and respect.

Helen Quaintance, of Howard, South Dakota is a gracious, interested, and enthusiastic correspondent with whom I have worked, typing her research of the Minnesota line. She, with her late husband, researched the Library of Congress, Federal Archives, made special visits to original sites and cemeteries to compile a wealth of material that has been willingly shared with you.

A distant kin of hers, a greater distant kin of ours, but no less an energetic correspondent and enthusiast, is Mary Putnam, of Murray, Utah, introduced to me by Fisher a year ago. Cousin Mary has available the vast resources of the genealogical library of the Church of the Latter Day Saints, in Salt Lake City, and has freely given me the results of research that represent hundreds of hours of time and effort. We all owe a great debt of gratitude to her for her experience, her data, her unselfish sharing.

Down in Flemingsburg, Kentucky Mary Pickett DeBell (V-78), age 82 this last April, 1968, has corresponded with me as she delineated the interesting relationship from Grace Rector Quaintance (V-3). Cousin Mary has made an excellent contribution to this paper.

Thanks, too, are due Mrs. Paul Quaintance of Los Angeles.

For these people mentioned above, and others, I have served in the capacity of an editor, a typist bringing the fragments of some knowledge, the data of some research, the pieces that make the whole into a paper that is as near complete as time and money permits. It has been a pleasurable thing; it has given me the warmth of new relationships and the excitement of new friends from the time the project commenced.

To the cousins mentioned above and the many other cousins who wrote to me of their particular family, thanks are due them from all of us.

Alfred M. Quaintance

Englewood, Colorado

I would that all the world could see springtime, in a small bit of itself called Rappahannock.

The earth is carpeted over with deep green grass and the sweetness of apple blossoms is in the air.

I said, "Thank God for the peace and beauty of the hills."

A mocking-bird, outside my window, trilled a song of praise, as though in answer to my thought.

RAPPAHANNOCK*

Rappahannock is an Indian name, first borne by Indian tribes, and derived from a characteristic of the river along which they lived. The name means "the people of the ebb and flow stream." Fluctuating tides come from Chesapeake Bay far up this mighty river, and the early colonists preserved the appropriate name it still bears. It was the name they gave also to one of the earliest counties, formed in 1656. This tidewater Rappahannock County ceased to be in 1692, when its territory was divided into Richmond County north of the River and Essex County south of the River. In 1833, on the headwaters of the River in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, another Rappahannock County was born, daughter of Culpeper, grand-daughter of Orange, great-granddaughter of Essex, and great-great-granddaughter of "Olde Rappahannocke."

Exploring families, among them the Thorntons, made their way up the River farther and farther toward the western mountain boundary. About 1740 Francis Thornton, having received a grant of land in the mountainous section of Virginia, left the mosquito-infested lowlands to seek homes for himself and his children in a land of hills and valleys and clear mountain streams, one of these streams, the beginning of the Rappahannock River.

Choosing a spot more beautiful than any other, he cut his initials in the bark of a tree--"F.T." F.T. Valley and F.T. Church will always remind us to tell the story of Francis Thornton, the pioneer. At the time of the settlement our valley lay in Orange County.

Francis Thornton married his cousin, Frances Gregory, whose mother was Mildred Washington, aunt to "the father of his country."

When George Washington was boy surveyor for Lord Fairfax, with headquarters at Fairfax, (later Culpeper) he often rode the distance of twenty miles or so to visit his Thornton Cousins.

The children of Francis Thornton and his wife Frances Gregory Thornton were John, William, and Mary.

Francis Thornton built for his son William the splendid colonial mansion of "Montpelier." Built of rock and stuccoed over with that cream stucco so popular in the early days, it faces the Blue Ridge. In front was the colonial entrance and at the back a long porch extending 110 feet, the full length of the house. The huge columns of this porch are from the ground three stories high.

The charming wife of Dr. Philip Thornton, son of William, made of "Montpelier" a famous home. When a small girl, I listened spell-bound to the story of Caroline Homassel Thornton.

MEADOW GREEN*

The land grant to the Quaintance family extended from the Thornton lands on the north, almost to Haywood in Madison County on the south. This grant was issued about the time that Francis Thornton made his settlement in the F.T. Valley.

John Quaintance (V-6), was the first of this family here. He built the old house that still stands at "Meadow Green." "Meadow Green", on a hill, is down the Hughes River from Peola Mills, a distance of one mile.

Henry Harford Quaintance (V-15), son of John, inherited his father's home. He built here, before the War Between the States, a handsome brick house, three stories high. The woodwork of the interior is especially striking, the handrail of the stairway is solid mahogany from basement to the top of the house.

The Quaintance sons were Marse (V-43), Taylor (V-46), James (V-49), and Dr. Oscar (V-48), and the daughters were Mrs. Fletcher (V-42), Mrs. Holtzman (V-79, granddaughter/), Mrs. Tidler (V-47), Mrs. Thurman (V-45), and Mrs. Walter Burgess (V-53).

After the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Quaintance, "Meadow Green" was sold to P. M. Finks, merchant at F.T. The brothers, Olney, Decatur, and Andrew, did business through life under the name of P. M. Finks and Sons. There was no division of property until after the deaths of these sons.

Andrew married Emma Dulaney of Peola Mills and made his home at "Meadow Green." Living there now are Mrs. Finks and her daughter Eda, and with them are their colored family servants.

A daughter (V-17) of John Quaintance married Joseph Story. Higher up the river is the old Story house, the home of A. W. Yowell at the present time.

THE DOCTOR'S HOUSE*

At the highest point in the village of Slate Mills stands a house that has never been without a doctor. It is perhaps older than the church but the exact date is not known, built for the doctor of the community, it has passed from one of the profession to the next. In the corner of the yard is an up-to-date doctor's office.

Dr. Jones was the first to live here; then there was Dr. Alsop, followed by a mythical doctor, whose name no one remembers.

In those early days Slate Mills was a medical center. Drs. Hume and Quesenberry, both lived here, but did not occupy the "Doctor's House."

At the close of the War Between the States, Dr. Thomas Amiss located here and lived in the "Doctor's House." He married Molly, daughter of Mr. John W. Miller, and here their three children were born.

Young Oscar Quaintance (V-48) from "Meadow Green", higher up in the F.T. Valley, read medicine with Dr. Amiss. He attended the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania, and returned to take up his life as the physician at twenty-one years of age. Dr. Amiss at this time moved to Page County. The young Dr. Quaintance married Miss Lelia Mallory and from the "Doctor's House" began his long life of service in 1875. In the "horse-and-buggy" days on the by-roads that surround Slate Mills, both in Rappahannock and Culpeper, the familiar figure of the Doctor on his white horse might be seen by day or by night.

Both of Dr. Oscar Quaintance's sons followed in their father's footsteps. Dr. Rupert (V-100), the elder son, located in West Virginia, being in charge of the hospital in Lundale.

Dr. Walter (V-101) returned from medical school and for several years was associated with his father. They were soon spoken of as the "Old Dr." and the "Young Dr." The father lived to the venerable age of ninety-three years. Dr. Walter died soon after his father. Then the "Doctor's House" was vacant, but soon Dr. Rupert returned. He was received with joy by those who know how valuable Quaintance doctors are. Dr. and Mrs. Quaintance have made a delightful home of the old "Doctor's House." They have two sons --Rupert, Jr. (V-144), a medical student at the Medical College of Virginia; Barton (V-145), the younger, is taking his senior year of law at Washington and Lee, Lexington, Virginia.

MOUNTAIN VIEW*

Back in the peaceful country, "far from the madding crowd", is the oldest Botts home. It is a spacious old house and from its front porch is a wonderful view of the mountain. "Mountain View" was built by Capt. Joseph Botts from Stafford County about 1800. He married Jane Ford of Fredericksburg. Leaving his young family, he served with the rank of Captain in the War of 1812. Capt. Botts was a large slave owner. A granddaughter said she remembered as a child how groups of small "darkies" would meet all guests at the big front gate, chanting their own peculiar song of welcome, they never failed to greet "Ole Marsa" with a song.

This was a haunted house. The old family burying-ground was but a short distance from the house and the colored folks told weird ghost stories--how one room was visited each night by a lady with long flowing hair, and the white folks had their slumbers disturbed by this same lady.

A beloved character in the family and neighborhood was a niece of Capt. Botts, who came after the death of his wife and took charge of the home. "Cousin Liza" was a welcome guest in every home.

Two of Capt. Botts' sons sought homes in the "West." His son William married Maria Kemper (sister of Governoe Kemper); Daniel married Catherine Tutt and lived in Woodville; Lewis married Jennie Crigler and lived at "Mountain View", the daughter Ann Elizabeth married Capt. Stark of "Mont Medi."

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Botts had one daughter, Anne Ford, who married Charles William Browning. She, with her husband and children, Virginia, Preston and Lewis, lived at "Mountain View."

Lewis Browning and his wife were the last of this family to own the old home. It became next the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Quaintance. Raymond Quaintance II (V-148) married Mary Botts Miller, great-great-granddaughter of Capt. Joseph Botts. In Mary Botts the fifth generation returned to "Mountain View."

Fleming County, Kentucky, First Settlement

by
Mary Pickett DeBell (V-78)

In 1775 the first white men to be here were John Finley and three other men from Pennsylvania who were with Thompson's Expedition to obtain bounty lands for officers of the French and Indian War.

The party came down the Ohio River to where Vanceburg is now located and while here they discovered the Lower and Upper Blue Licks, natural salt licks and a valuable source of salt. Drovers of buffalo came here as did the Mastodon of an earlier period, proved by their bones now on exhibition in the nearby museum.

When the men returned to Pennsylvania and drew for lots, Finley drew for a thousand acres and, after serving in the Revolution, returned and built a home and resided here with his family.

In April of 1776 John Fleming (see V-41), George Stockton, William McCleary and Samuel Strode came down the river in a piroque. Finley struck a buffalo trail down the creek and "happened into these parts." Here they obtained preemption rights by building twenty cabins and planting corn.

Fleming remained at Harrodsburg, Kentucky and later at Strodes Station. Stockton had a family and returned to Pennsylvania or that part of Virginia later called West Virginia.

McCleary was a lawyer who returned to live at Morgantown, West Virginia, and never returned here. Fleming and Stockton were half-brothers, their mother was Sarah Keith, and both parents were from North Ireland. Fleming was born in 1753 and died the winter of 1790 or 1791. Stockton was born in 1742 and is buried in the Stockton burial ground opposite his station. McCleary was born in Ireland, became a colonel in the Revolution. He was a brother-in-law to Stockton, having married Isbella Stockton. Samuel Strode returned and fought in the Revolution. Later he settled a station in Mason County.

In 1786 Stockton returned and built his station enclosing within the stockade the "Big Spring" where he found Indian axes hidden when there in '76. The next year he brought out his family. The first company officers were members of the Stockton family.

Families known to have come to the station were the Williams, Barnes, and Dudleys. The station was never attacked by Indians; however, Zadick Williams was killed while out in a nearby field by passing Indians.

Only one Indian battle was fought in the county, later called "Battle Run" where whites overtook Indians who had stolen two children. Fleming was shot from his horse and many whites and Indians were killed. Fleming returned to Pennsylvania for a short time.

In the spring of 1780, Col. Thomas Jones stated he came down the Ohio River to Louisville with a fleet of boats carrying 27 families, and had been on the trail with Capt. Fleming.

In April, 1780, Fleming appeared before the commission appointed at _____ Station, now Stanford, where the commission was to issue certificates for preemption rights. Fleming was granted one by paying the State price, the first to be granted on land in now Fleming County. In 1781 he married Mrs. Lucy Donaldson, the widow of Patrick Donaldson who had been shot at Strodes Station by an Indian.

In 1779 he and Michael Cassidy built a station about two or three miles from where Stockton had located.

Cassidy ran away from his boyhood home in Ireland, came to Virginia, and later fought in the Revolution. He received land and came to Strodes Station, later to Fleming County where he settled. He was the first State Senator from Kentucky.

In 1782 (1784) four surveyors and companions surveyed lands in what is now Fleming County. Stockton returned to make entries of survey. Fleming was a deputy surveyor under Col. Thomas Marshall and located lands for many in central Kentucky and Fleming County.

In 1796 a State law was passed to promote towns. Stockton owned the land near his station and town lots were sold. In 1798 the county was taken from Mason County and named for John Fleming, as was the town. Commissioners were appointed to decide where the public buildings were to be built for a county seat. A majority favored Flemingsburg rather than George Lewis' place on Allison. The streets and alleys were laid off and named as they are today.

The first Court House was erected in 1796-99. Previously, court was held in the home of John Faris, a tavern built for him by George Stockton, the first house in the town. Court met at times in the homes of William Robinson and Robert Barnes. The first Court House was built of logs and later replaced by a brick one in 1829.

The first court orders recorded were for licenses for taverns in the town and county, for roads to Blue Lick for salt and to other county seat towns and for water rights to erect mills.

After a treaty with the Indians in 1796, many settlers arrived. Many settlers were from Virginia and Pennsylvania. Methodists settled and built "Fitch Chapel." School buildings were often used for church services.

At first all buildings were of logs, then brick buildings, with bricks burned on the premises, were built. Many original brick buildings are still standing. Later the log houses were covered with weather boarding.

By 1799 there were two church buildings. The Presbyterian church was organized in 1795. Tilton's Chapel was built by the Rev. Richard Tilton and was the first brick church in the state.

Bryon Route surveyed here, returned to Virginia in 1800 and brought out fifty heads of families who settled on Licking River. The early settlers were Scotch-Irish, many coming here from Scotland and Ireland directly. They were poor, but industrious, thrifty, believed in education and religion. They created a culture and stable citizenry.

The first recorded fine was for a man swearing in George Stockton's meadow.

Biographical Sketch
No. VIII
Fleming County, Kentucky Newspaper 1878
William Quaintance (V-7)

William Quaintance, the subject of this sketch, was born in Rappahannock County, Virginia December 7, 1785. In company with his father's family he emigrated to Kentucky in 1795. The family consisted of two older brothers and three sisters. His great-grandfather* was an English sailor who settled in "The Jerseys." His father bought and improved the old farm located four miles north of Flemingsburg, now owned by Jonathan Luman of Mt. Carmel. Here William Quaintance spent the days of his youth farming.

When the War of 1812 broke out, he volunteered his services and enlisted in Captain Belt's Company and was attached to Col. Pogue's Regiment, and spent the winter of 1814 in the northern part of Ohio. After his service in the army, he returned home and soon afterward was married to Miss Sabra Southard, of this county, by whom he had eight children: four sons and four daughters. Soon after his marriage, he bought and improved the farm upon which Joshua DeBell now lives (1878) situated about midway between Flemingsburg and Mt. Carmel. On this farm he built a mill and distillery, and manufactured flour, meal and whiskey. He took a great deal of pride in his mill and always claimed that he made the sweetest meal, finest flour, and purest whiskey of any miller or distiller in the state. Notwithstanding, he was a manufacturer of whiskey, he was an ardent temperance man, having been a member of the first temperance society ever organized in the county.

In June, 1833, he lost his wife in the cholera epidemic of that year. During the prevalence of this disease, he went about visiting the sick and burying the dead. It was sometime during that year that he sent for a preacher in charge of the Methodist Church, and claimed that he was a member of the church, and had been all of his life, having been baptized in infancy, and had observed the ordinances of the church for many years. He was enrolled as a member and ever after lived a true and consistent Christian.

*This reference is the sole indication that 1-William Quaintance was the 2nd Quaintance in America and not the first as indicated; however, in the absence of further information, the lineal descent must commence with a named identity and 1-William of East Caln, Pa., is used as the best evidence of record. AMQ 1968.

In politics he was always a Whig but never a politician in the common acceptance of the term. He voted for Whigs because he believed in Whig principles. He never held office nor was he ever a candidate for any. When our late unhappy civil war began, his whole heart and soul was enlisted in the Union cause, but before it lasted long he saw the attitude it was assuming in regard to slavery and became utterly disgusted with the position he had taken and abandoned it. He cast his lot for president for General McClellan the Democratic candidate for president in 1864.

Of William Quaintance's eight children, two of his sons died in childhood, and the third in young manhood. His oldest daughter (V-24) married John W. Stockwell of Poplar Plains; the second (V-25) married T. A. Henderson of Mt. Carmel; the third (V-26) married James A. Brooks of New York, a Methodist minister. Only two of his children are now living - Mrs. Louise F. Stockwell of Covington, and William S. Quaintance (V-28) of this county. The surviving son, William S. is one of our substantial citizens, being at present largely engaged in farming and stock raising. Aside from his agricultural pursuits, William S. takes a lively interest in public affairs and is one of the most generous friends to public enterprise and welfare to be found anywhere. A few years ago he conceived an idea for securing substantial and economical insurance against fire, and mainly through his efforts, the Farmers Home Mutual Insurance Company of Fleming County was organized and put into successful operation. He now resides a few miles from Flemingsburg on the pike leading to Elizaville.

It may not be out of place to say that he was the youngest of his father's family and was, as a matter of course, his mother's pet. He was not a bad or wicked boy, but of a decidedly mischievous turn of mind. He was full of fun and pranks and it was his delight to play them when an opportunity presented itself. In his old days he was fond of telling of some of his pranks. One Sunday morning his mother being ready to go to church called him to her and told him jestingly to do all the mischief he could while she was gone. Failing to understand, he tried his hand. The first thing he did was to pen up a flock of ducks and pick them clean of feathers and then let them go. That done he took her favorite pewter basin out into the yard and nailed it fast to the wash block and when the old lady got home she found him bathing in her rain water, the greatest outrage of all. These any many other little mischievous incidents he used to relate.

About the beginning of the war he sold his farm and bought a house and lot in Flemingsburg, in which he lived until his death, which occurred January 5, 1867, at the ripe age of 82 years.

COUNTY OF FLEMING )ss.

On this 2nd day of April, A.D., one thousand eight hundred and fifty five, personally appeared before me a Justice of the Peace within and for said county and state William Quaintance aged sixty nine years, a resident of said county of Fleming in the State of Kentucky, who being duly sworn according to law, declares that he is the identical William Quaintance who was a private soldier in the company commanded by Captain Joseph C. Belt in the 4th Regiment of Kentucky Volunteers, commanded by Colonel Robert Pogue, in the war with Great Britain, declared by the United States on the 18th day of June, 1812: for the term of six months and continued in actual service in said war for fourteen days and upwards that he has heretofore made application for bounty land under the act of September 28th, 1850, and received a land warrant No. not recollected, for Eighty acres, which he has since legally disposed of, and cannot now return.

He makes this declaration for the purpose of obtaining the additional bounty land to which he may be entitled under the act approved the 3d day of March, 1855. He also declares, that he has never applied for, nor received, under this or any other act of Congress, any bounty land warrant except the one above mentioned.

(Signed) Wm. Quaintance

We, Joel Debell & John Donaldson, residents of Fleming County, in the State of Kentucky, upon our oaths, declare that the foregoing declaration was signed and acknowledged by William Quaintance in our presence, and that we believe, from the appearance and statements of the applicant, that he is the identical person he represents himself to be.

(Signed) Joel Debell
John Donaldson

The foregoing declaration and affidavit were sworn to and subscribed before me on the day and year above written: and I certify that I know the affiants to be credible persons; that the claimant is the person he represents himself to be; and that I have no interest in the claim.

Last Will And Testament
Of
William Quaintance V-7

I, William Quaintance, of the county of Fleming, State of Kentucky, being now nearly eighty years of age and feeble in body but of sound mind and disposing memory and have this long thought of and fully considered the subject, now constitute and declare the following as my last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills:

Item First: It is my will that my executors hereinafter appointed out of any, the most available estate I may die seized of, not specifically herein devised, pay all my just debts, and proper and becoming funeral expenses;

Item Second: I also will and direct that my executors at as early a period as may be convenient, cause to be erected a marble slab of suitable size between the graves of myself and father, to be done according to a memorandum, I have this day made in the handwriting of J. H. Crain. Also a marble slab over the grave of my beloved wife, and for the repair of the graveyard or lot on my old farm. I direct that my executors expend so much as fifty dollars, this is in accordance with said memorandum and for the purpose aforesaid, these expenses are to constitute a part of my debts, and funeral expenses.

Item Third: It is my purpose to make my three children as near equal as I can well do. This can never be mathematically accurate but sufficiently near. I have heretofore advanced to my daughter Louisa P. Stockwell Fourteen Hundred Dollars and Forty Six Dollars. For this sum she is to be charged as an advancement in the final settlement of my estate, and to Harriet S. Henderson I have advanced the sum of Seven Hundred and Eighty Five Dollars, and this sum she is to be charged as an advancement in the settlement of my estate; and whereas I hold five notes on my son, William S. Quaintance, to wit: one for forty dollars, dated July 30th, 1856, one for one hundred and ninety dollars dated Feb'ry 16th 1857; one for two hundred and ninety five dollars, March 15, 1861; one for forty dollars, dated 20th April 1857; and another with H. J. Darnall as security for seven hundred dollars dated June 12th 1866. Now these recited notes due to me and their accumulated interest I devise to my son William S. Quaintance as an advancement and for these notes and their interest at my death, he my said son is to be charged as so much advanced to him and I now direct that out of the proceeds of sales of my lands I direct that my three children be made equal, taking the above sums as the basis for such settlement.

Item Fourth: And whereas I am being kindly treated and affectionately nursed by my daughter Louisa P. Stockwell and I may yet require much of her kind nursing, I therefore and in consideration that she continue to do so devise and bequeath to her all my household furniture of every kind, all my livestock, to her and her heirs.

Item Fifth: And as to any other estate I may own at my death shall pass as assets to pay debts and funeral expenses.

Item Sixth: Lastly I appoint my son-in-law Alexander Henderson and my trusted friend John H. Crain my executors, investing them with full power to sell my lands and fully settle my estate as contemplated by this, my will, and they or either of them to fully convey the lands to the purchaser.

In testimony whereof I have this first day of December 1866, set my hand.

The Burial of the Guns

WHEN, in 1904, I left my Southern home to teach in Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, I was apprehensive, for I was the son of a Confederate colonel, and I was going into a region where the Civil War spirit was still particularly strong. Nor were my fears groundless. Said a Pennsylvania German to me, soon after my arrival, "Stranger, dare I go into the Shenandoah Valley without a gun?"

Mercersburg, being about halfway between Harrisburg and Washington, saw much of that war. Antietam and Gettysburg are near by. On Lee's retreat from Gettysburg, some of his wounded soldiers had been nursed in the old seminary buildings of Mercersburg; some had died there.

On a hill above the town is the ancient and beautiful cemetery. There one day I found the graves of three Confederate soldiers—two from Virginia, J. W. Alban and W. H. Quaintance; the third was marked "Unknown." To a Confederate column in the Richmond Times-Dispatch, I contributed the story of those graves. Two weeks later, I received the following letter:

My dear Friend: I read of your finding of the graves. My husband and I had been married only two months when he went with General Lee to Gettysburg. I have never known what became of him. I want to see where he lies. Can you help me?

Sincerely,
MRS. W. H. QUAINANCE.

I showed this letter to the Presbyterian minister.

"Tell her to come," he said. "I will make arrangements."

When the train arrived on that memorable evening, half the townspeople met it. Many carried bouquets. A fine carriage waited for the honored guest. Frail and beautiful, a little dazed, Mrs. Quaintance appeared. No queen ever met a nobler reception.

Next day, a great procession made its way to the cemetery. All the Confederate graves were banked with flowers.

Silently, the crowd made a circle about them while Mrs. Quaintance walked to her husband's grave and knelt there briefly. Then the people dispersed reverently, and many handkerchiefs dabbed at many eyes.

Only Mrs. Quaintance, the minister and I were left standing on that hallowed ground.

"Much as I love him," she said, "I could not have done more for him myself. He has about him beauty and those who honor him. He was my soldier, and he lies in peace."

That experience taught me a great deal about the generosity of good people wherever you find them. —ARCHIBALD RUTLEDGE.

Tanner
Slate Mills, Rappa<sup>n</sup>k Co., Va.

Dear Sir,

I regret I have a painful duty to perform. Last week a lady living at Mercersburg, Franklin Co., Pa. saw a Confederate prisoner, then at a Mr. Leonard Leidy's near the town whose name was Joseph William Quaintance of a Cavalry Company, and who was wounded near Hanover, Pa. They carried him to the place above named. The lady asked him if he knew anyone in our city. He said his father did business with the house who writes this letter. The lady was very much interested in the young man, about 23 years of age, who said he had a wife and child. She wrote to one of our friends who lives about six miles from Mercersburg and asked him to call on him and give him all the comfort he could.

We have not had time to hear from him but yesterday the lady who lives here received a letter that Mr. Quaintance had died on the 28th of August about noon and was buried in the Methodist burial ground of the town.

Regretted by all who had made his acquaintance. The ball was extracted from his spine a day or two before his death and he sank under the effects. He seemed to be convinced that his case was very critical and his great regret seemed to be that he would have to part with his wife and child. We hear Mr. Leidy's family were very attentive and kind to him and they have his ring and some of his hair for his friends, and a stone has been put at his grave. If we hear from his friend any further particulars we will try to inform you. He had the consolation of having a Clergyman with him and one attended his funeral service. We hear he made an edifying death and may he rest in peace. Oh my good old friend and customer, may the day soon come when this cruel war which is bringing so much woe and sorrow to so many families soon be over. May God in His mercy hasten it. If you wish to write to us do so, we will do all we can for you.

Very respectfully,

Mercersburg, Franklin Co., Pa.
Sept. 15, 1863

Mr. Henry Quaintance,

Dear Sir,

Was I assured that these lines would reach you, I would feel much more interest in writing them, altho the intelligence it contains will be sad, to you and the wife and friends of your son, Joseph W., yet I hope there are circumstances connected with it that will tend to soften your grief. He died at my house on the 28th day of August from wounds received at Hanover, Adams Co. on the last day of June. The ambulance Hancock was captured while on the way to the Potomac about eight miles from Mercersburg on the 5th day of July and he was brought to town that evening apparently in a dying condition. The next morning my two daughters with other ladies visited the hospital and noticed your son being very ill and it being impossible for one so low as he was to have the care and comfort necessary for one in his condition, they requested the officer in charge to have him moved to our house which he cheerfully complied with, and on the morning of the sixth of July he was put under our care. We immediately procured the best medical aid.

All the physicians of our village frequently visited him and my wife and daughters gave him all the care and attention that could have been to one of our own sons had he been in the same condition, and in the course of eight or ten days he had apparently improved so as to sit up in an arm chair several hours during the day for several days in succession and he with the rest of us had great hopes of his recovering in the course of a few weeks to get home, which of course he was anxious to reach. He expressed anxiety to see his dear wife and child but the weather set in extremely wet and continued for two or three weeks and he took diarrhea which prostrated his system very much before it could be arrested. He again revived unbelievably and still expressed hopes of being able to reach home and friends, but his wound was a bad one having injured the right lung and indeed we suppose his right lung must have been principally all gone before he died. He suffered but little pain at any time and was talkative and cheerful to within an hour or two of his death.

He went suddenly. On the morning of the day on which he died he ate a hearty breakfast and told my wife what he would like for dinner and appeared as usual, and we did not think of his dying that day but about 10 o'clock a difficulty of breathing commenced and continued on at intervals till about two o'clock when he expired, without a sigh or groan. He was perfectly rational and conversed up to the last five minutes of his life, about his last words were "Mrs. Leidy, I am dying but I am dying happy; tell my dear wife to live Godly and meet me in heaven".

From his first coming to our house down to his death he was much concerned about his soul's salvation. He prayed much and I am happy to inform you, professed to find peace and pardon through the merits of Christ our Savior. For several days before his death he said he gave up wife and child, home and friends and committed them to the Lord. He talked much about his home and friends, especially his wife and child. We all felt particularly anxious that he should at least so far recover as to be able to get home but an all wise Providence ordered it otherwise and we must submit to His will in all things and our prayer is that his dear friends may experience that His grace is sufficient.

He had his desires in reference to his wife and child committed to writing a few days previous to his death and requested me to keep the papers until I had an opportunity to personally delivering it to his father. The Rev. Dr. Wolf spoke at his funeral and we buried him decently in the Methodist cemetery.

There have been a number of letters written you and sent through different courses. We hope you have received some of them but I write you this with the expectation that you will most certainly get it, if possible I would like to hear if you have received any of our letters. Please write me if possible. We have a lock of his hair and a gold ring that was on his finger that we will carefully preserve until they can be safely delivered to his friends. I think I have written about all I can think of that would interest you and will conclude, hoping that the day may not be far distant and we will be permitted to meet face to face.

Yours respectfully,
(Signed) Leonard Leidy

(P.S.) We are pleased to inform you that we have received your and Mrs. Quaintance letter last evening and we are much gratified to hear from you. In reviewing my letter I think it embraces everything you wish to know. We interned your son anticipating your desires to remove his remains as soon as practicable. I remit this letter to Martinsburg, Va. to a friend who has promised to have it forwarded to you if possible.

Yours,
L. Leidy.

Dear Relative,

Have learned from Mr. Fletcher of Lamar, Missouri through my daughter who also lives there that you are going to make a visit to your relations in Missouri in September. Should you do so you must come by and see us. You can take the Chesapeake & Ohio and come through Mount Sterling to Parice and there take the Kentucky Central for Maysville but stop at Johnson's Junction in Fleming Co., there you will meet a train that will take you to Flemingsburg in three minutes, our county seat; we live 2 miles from town or you could come down from Huntington to Maysville, Ky. and up to Johnson's Junction then to Flemingsburg. I learned through my daughter that lives in Lamar, Missouri that Mr. Fletcher is a son of Betty Quaintance (Dr. Oscar's sister Elizabeth) a daughter of Henry Harford Quaintance (who was) a son of John Quaintance who was a brother of William Quaintance, my father. Henry Quaintance visited us accompanied by his daughter then quite young.

P.S. I received your letter in answer to mine sometime last year. Come and see us whether you go to Missouri or not, but if you go to Missouri you must not pass us. You must come.

Your Relative,

(Signed) William S. Quaintance

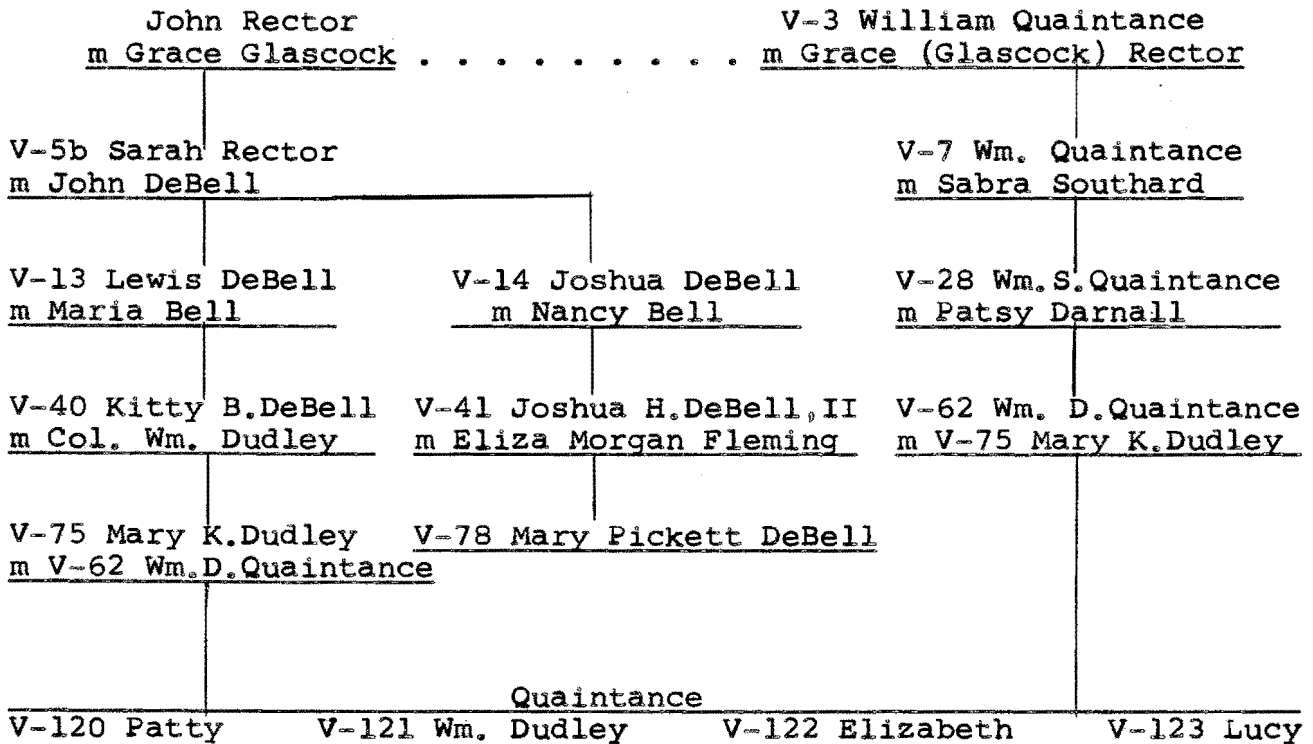

Flemingsburg, Fleming Co., Ky.

THE QUAINTANCE-RECTOR RELATIONSHIP

There exists a maternal kinship from Grace (nee Glascock) Rector Quaintance in the union of V-62 William Durrett Quaintance and V-25 Mary Kenner Dudley. William Durrett Quaintance was the great-grandson of Grace Rector Quaintance while Mary Kenner Dudley was the great-great granddaughter of Grace Rector. Three daughters were born of the union of Grace Glascock and John Rector: Hannah, Sarah, and Ann. They became the step-daughters of V-3 William Quaintance upon his marriage to Grace. In turn, two sons were born of V-3 William and Grace: John and William. Thus, the children of this second marriage became half-brothers and half-sisters, their descendents in the fourth and fifth generation uniting the families in marriage.

Notes From Mrs. C. L. Dudley's Scrapbook
by Mary Pickett DeBell

Mrs. L. P. Stockwell (V-24) died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Downtain (V-57), at Winfield, West Virginia on November 12, (1897) in the eightieth year of her age. The remains accompanied by Mrs. Downtain and daughter Miss Magdalene were taken to Covington, Ky., for interment. Deceased was a relative of several parties living here, among whom are Mrs. S. E. Lightfoot.

The Putnam Democrat of Winchester, West Virginia of November 19th has the following notice of the death of a lady well known here, being the step-mother of Mrs. Sallie Lightfoot and sister of William S. Quaintance. Mrs. L. P. Stockwell died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Downtain at Winfield last Friday, after an illness of a few days, in the 80th year of her age. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. J. W. Hampton, of the M. E. Church, South, of Charleston, on Saturday, and the remains were taken to Covington, Kentucky for interment, accompanied by Mrs. J. G. Downtain and Miss Magdeline Downtain. This old lady had been a member of the South Methodist Church for sixty years and many times expressed a desire to meet her loved ones gone. She was a brilliant woman, thoroughly conversant upon all issues of the times, and died in the hope of a triumphant resurrection.

The family has our sympathy but their loss is Heaven's eternal gain.

MRS. QUAINANCE (V-75) DIES IN FLORIDA

Mrs. Mary Dudley Quaintance, native of Fleming county and a former resident of Maysville, died Saturday at her home in Lake Wales, Florida, where on Thursday she had suffered a stroke. She was 92 years old.

A telegram telling of her passing came here to Douglas P. Newell, Maysville investment broker. It stated that funeral services and burial would take place today in Lake Wales and asked that friends not send flowers.

Mrs. Quaintance was the wife of the late William D. Quaintance with whom she came with their family to Maysville from Flemingsburg in the first decade of this century. After his passing her daughters opened a gift shop adjacent to the Washington theatre and operated it until the mid 1920's when the family moved to Florida to be with a son, the late William Dudley Quaintance, for some years employed here with the George H. Frank Co., and in Florida subsequently a successful owner and operator of a number of orange groves.

The venerable woman was born in Fleming county in 1862, the daughter of William Taylor and Kitty DeBell Dudley, families of old and distinguished lineage in Kentucky. In 1883 she was married to Mr. Quaintance. He died in 1902. Mrs. Quaintance will be kindly remembered by older residents of the community as a woman of gracious dignity and fine character. Many are the pleasant memories that friends have of her. She was a member of the Methodist church.

Survivors are two daughters, Miss Elizabeth DeBell Quaintance and Mrs. Stuart W. Ross (Lucy Gordon Quaintance), both of Lake Wales.

QUAINTANCE WEDDING OF INTEREST HERE

Many friends here will be interested in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Lucy Gordon Quaintance (V-123), daughter of Mrs. Mary Durrett Quaintance, of Lake Wales, Fla. and Mr. Stuart Woodsworth Ross, also of Lake Wales. The impressive double ring ceremony was solemnized August 27, at Memorial Chapel, Lake Junalaski, N. C. Admiral William N. Thomas, retired head of Naval Chaplains, officiated.

Miss Elizabeth DeBell Quaintance (V-122), also of Lake Wales, was her sister's maid of honor and Mr. William Ernest Carter of Lake Junalaski, was best man.

The bride wore an afternoon frock of rose chiffon with lace bolero and her hat and shoes were of hyacinth blue. She carried a white prayer book centered with an orchid and from which fell streamers tied with tuberose. Her only jewelry was a gold and pearl necklace which was a family heirloom. The brides maid wore a gown of ice blue chiffon with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of orchids.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of Mr. William Ernest Carter after which the couple left on their bridal trip.

The bride, with her mother and sister, made their home here for a number of years and were held in high regard by all who knew them.

Mr. Ross was educated at East Lansing, Mich., and later went into business in Chicago. He moved to Lake Wales several years ago and since has been engaged in the raising of citrus fruits.

The new Mrs. Ross is a niece of Mrs. Douglas Dudley of this city who attended the wedding along with several Mason county friends and relatives and who enjoyed several pre-nuptial parties.

DR. QUAINANCE, 87,
HONORED BY KENNEDY

By MARY STEVENS JONES, Star-Exponent News Editor

Culpeper, Virginia, December, 1963. A certificate of appreciation for "patriotic and constructive service to your country," signed by the late President John F. Kennedy, arrived just in time to hang on the Christmas tree of one of Rappahannock County's most beloved senior citizens--Dr. Rupert W. Quaintance, Sr.

Along with the certificate, which was signed by the President just prior to his death, came a lapel pin, also in recognition of Dr. Quaintance's "15 years of service as an uncompensated member of the Selective Service system."

The 87-year old doctor has served as medical board advisor for Local Selective Service Board 102 of Washington, Va. Although he has received many honors and awards during his long life, this one has special significance, the doctor said, because it bears President Kennedy's signature.

"I voted for him, and I admired him very much," he said, adding, with a smile, "I've been a Democrat all my life."

Among the distinctions held by Dr. Quaintance without benefit of a certificate or a public award are these:

He has been a practicing physician and surgeon for more than 60 years. He has delivered more than 9,000 babies--"by actual count," he says. He is the oldest living graduate of the College of William and Mary. He is the son, brother and father of doctors.

Dr. Quaintance began practicing medicine in 1901 and continued to engage actively in his profession until he was forced to retire a year ago when he suffered a broken leg as a result of a fall. Since last December he has spent most of the time as a patient in Culpeper Memorial Hospital. He is an honorary member of the hospital's medical staff, and his son, Dr. Rupert Jr., is staff president.

"It's a fine hospital," said Dr. Rupert Sr., "but I hope to go home for Christmas."

"Home" is Slate Mills, where he was born and reared and attended public school. He took his pre-med degree at the College of William and Mary in 1897 and His M.D. degree at the Medical College of Virginia (then called the University College of Medical), Richmond, in 1901.

His father, Oscar Ringold Quaintance who graduated in medicine from the University of Pennsylvania, was a practicing physician at Slate Mills for more than 50 years. He had two doctor sons, Walter and Rupert.

Walter received two degrees from the Medical College of Virginia, one in medicine and the other in dentistry. He returned to Slate Mills to practice medicine along with his father and also to set up offices for the practice of dentistry.

Dr. Rupert went to West Virginia and set up a practice of general medicine and surgery. He lived for a while in Huntington and for a longer time in Lundale, in the heart of West Virginia's coal-mining section.

In response to a request by a coal company, he opened a 35-bed hospital in Lundale and operated it for 10 years, taking care of patients from approximately 15 mines. Here he delivered several thousand babies, performed hundreds of operations and treated all manner of ills.

One of the many tributes paid Dr. Quaintance during his recent illness came from a West Virginia friend whose family he had served, saying: "In those days we didn't think we had to consult a specialist for each different ailment, for, to us, Dr. Quaintance was a specialist in all things--a doctor to treat all physical ills, a man who cared for you personally, and a friend to all."

In 1944 Dr. Quaintance left West Virginia to "retire" in his family home at Slate Mills, Rappahannock County, just across the boundary line from Culpeper.

"Retirement for him" said his wife, "simply meant taking up a country doctor's practice where his father left off." For the next 18 years he practiced general medicine over a three-county area and performed numerous minor operations.

Nurses, as well as doctors, run in the Quaintance family. Both Dr. Rupert Sr. and Dr. Rupert Jr. married registered nurses.

Dr. Rupert Sr. was married in 1921 to Bessie Ramsey of Nelson County, who holds a R.N. degree from the University of Virginia School of Nursing.

His elder son, Dr. Rupert Jr., married Virginia Neligh of Indianapolis, Ind., who has a R.N. degree from the University of Indianapolis. They have four children.

Dr. Quaintance Jr., a graduate of the University of Virginia School of Medicine, has been practicing medicine in Culpeper since 1951.

His brother, Barton, foresook the family calling in favor of law, graduating from the Washington and Lee University School of Law. He and his wife and six children live in Wilmington, Del., where he is employed by the DuPont Corp.

Dr. Quaintance Sr. is a member of Slate Mills Baptist Church. He is a Mason, a Shriner and a Knights Templar. During his years in West Virginia he was prominently identified with the business, civic and social, as well as with the professional life of the communities in which he lived. Among other business connections, he was formerly a director and president of the Logan County Bank and director of the Logan County Coal Corp. He has been listed in "Who's Who of the South" and "Who's Who of Virginia."

In spite of three major operations on his hip during the past year and other major illnesses, Dr. Quaintance retains his cheerful, optimistic outlook on life and his interest in people and things--especially medicine. During his stay in the hospital he has prescribed for himself with good results, especially in the treatment of arthritis and asthma, which are among his minor ailments.

Already, his grandchildren are interested in that Certificate of Appreciation bearing President Kennedy's signature, and what more could an 87-year-old man wish for than to have 5 grandsons and 5 granddaughters to carry on his name and family tradition of giving "patriotic and constructive service" to their country and lending a healing, helping hand to those in need.

OBITUARY

February 27, 1968

Dear Mr. Quaintance:

I was born on the James Quaintance farm but when a small child the family moved to Mt. Carmel, Kentucky, where my father operated a furniture store. I shall be 82 this year.

I still do not accept your theory that William, who married Tamson Buffington, was the first Quaintance in America. The sketch from the Fleming County paper says, "great grandmother" which would put it one generation before William and Tamson; then the notes attached to the will of William Quaintance which I sent you last week says, "grandmother _____ Quaintance lived to be 99 years old," - still a generation before your William and Tamson. If only this "friend" who wrote the memo had completed it and put in the name of the grandmother we might be able to "speculate" more convincingly.

I have just one clue that lends credence to the Miss Lee story (see V-3). I have two coin silver tablespoons of James Quaintance with the letters "JLQ" inscribed on them. No place else do I find a middle initial in his name, but it could have been for Lee, his mother's name (?). His wife's name was Sarah, so the initials were not hers. The Powers family, descendants of Elizabeth Briarley Quaintance and Jacob Powers, have a teaspoon bearing the same inscription as mine. One of my father's brothers had a solid silver ladle belonging to James Quaintance, so the silver must have been divided among his children.

My grandfather, A. M. Beckett, bought from George Quaintance, the parcel of land devised to him under his grandfather's will. He also bought at a sale of James' personal property a lot of articles.

As to my DAR ancestor: John Logan served from Chester County, Pa., as a private. Ny number is 410075. He married Elizabeth Briarley of Harford County, Md., and emigrated to Mason County, Kentucky, and lived for a time in McKinley's Blockhouse, where his son, Joseph (later a colonel in the Mexican War) was born September 27, 1785, being the first white child born in Mason County. (Collin's History of Kentucky, Vol. II, p. 556.) His daughter, Sarah Logan, married James Quaintance. In addition to being a DAR I am a member of the Daughters of the American Colonists and Colonial Dames of XVII Century through my descent from Nicholas Wallingford, who emigrated to this country in 1638, from England, settled in Massachusetts, and later in Maryland and Virginia. The Wallingfords came into Kentucky in 1785. Through my descent from John Logan I am a member of the Magna Charta Dames. I am also a member and past president of the Southwest Genealogical Society of San Antonio, Texas.

The Quaintance Family
in Virginia and Kentucky

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS

1. Quaintance, William, b 1719 d unknown. Believed to be the first Quaintance in America. Family folklore says William was a navigator, or sailor, who 'jumped ship' from England and came into Pennsylvania through Jersey and settled at East Caln. The tax list of Chester County, Pa., for 1748 through 1756 lists William Quaintance as a resident of Goshen Township and of East Bradford Township, Pa. (m Tamson Buffington, b 1723, East Caln, Pa. In the will of Elizabeth Freeman of West Bradford, 1748, in Chester County Wills, it is recorded: "..... to sisters Mary Turner, Phebe Buffington, and Damson Quaintance....."). The earliest mention of the family in Friends records was in the Bradford Monthly Meeting Minutes of "17th of ye 3rd month 1776 Caln Preparative Meeting informs this that Joseph Quaintance requests to be taken under the care of Friends belonging to this meeting." The minutes concerning his marriage give his parent as William Quaintance.

V-6 Quaintance, John b 1780 d 4-29-1856 (m 7-28-1804 Nancy Baker Harford b 10-15-1788 d 6-10-1865). He died after being thrown from a colt named "Major Lewis" his foot having caught in the stirrup and being dragged some distance. Owned a fine home "Meadow Green" and farm, mill and tannery on Hughes River, in Rappahannock Co., Va., at the southern end of the beautiful and fertile F.T. Valley. Believed born in Fauquier Co., migrated (1795) with his mother and father, three step-sisters, and brother William V-7 to Kentucky, but returned to Virginia to marry "his childhood sweetheart." His birth-date is in some dispute as one source records the year 1786 while the census for Rappahannock Co., 1850, lists John as being age 70 and wife "Ann" being age 62. Further, her name is listed as "Vina Quaintance" age 70 which would make her birth year 1790, in the 1860 census of Rappahannock Co. It is believed that "Ann" and "Vina" are the same person as Nancy Baker Harford, as Nancy signed deeds with her husband and could not write, using X mark, which may account for some of the V-6 Quaintance, John, (Cont.) differences found for this person in census records. The marriage bond for this Nancy Baker Harford was signed by her mother Winifred who also could not write and signed the bond with her X. (Fauquier Co., Va., Marriage Bond Book 2, Page 350, dated 25 July 1804.) The death date of John seems correct as the Rappahannock Co., Va., Will Book D, pages 98 & 99, dated June 9, 1856, show the court appointed appraisers for his estate in the year of his recorded death. Buried in the family cemetery F.T.Valley, Peola Mills, Va.

V-7 Quaintance, William, b 12-7-1785 in Rappahannock Co., Va. d 1-5-1867 (m 6-1-1815 Sabra Southard of Fleming Co., Ky., b 1-3-1786 d 6-22-1833). Enlisted in Capt. Belt's Company, War of 1812, attached to Col. Pogue's Regiment, spending the winter of 1814 in the northern part of Ohio. Built a mill on his farm four miles from Flemingsburg, Ky., and produced flour and meal. Buried with Sabra in the Quaintance Cemetery located on the old Quaintance Farm in Fleming Co., Ky. He was an ardent temperance man, a member of the first temperance society organized in the county. Methodist, Whig.
